Project Description

This project involved many different joinery elements to create modern spacious private home, with unique design and striking features.

Coulson Joinery worked with the architect and client to develop and produce some very complex joinery items in this property. We manufactured a number of different feature elements within this property from bespoke Iroko cladding and windows, solid Oak stairs and feature wall panelling, Oak veneered faceted ceiling and fitted and free standing furniture items from tables, vanity units, bookcases and media units. This high end project required a high level of workmanship and attention to detail.
